THE BEGGAR GIRL.

BY I. F. INCH.

Out in the cold and piller street,
No one to warm her hands or feet;
No one to own her, no one who cares Where she goes or how she fares.

No gentle sister to love and caress, No fond mother her darling to bless;
No handsome brother, noble and good,
No strong father to gather her food.

Ragged and dirty, littered and torn,
Her thin little form is an object of scorn.
Ragged old shoes that hinder her toes, As day after day a-begging she goes.

None care to teach her the way to her God, None will weep when she's under the sod;
No one will own her, no one will care, Whether she's here or whether she's there.

Please ma'am give me one crust of bread, I have no supper, no home and no bed;
Oh! it is hard to be gentle and good,
Out in the night air all alone.

"I have no sister to love and caress, No kind mother her darling to bless;
No handsome brother, noble and good,
No loving father to provide me with food.

"Alone, alone in this dreary world, Exposed to the voracious and cruel crowd,
Oh! it is hard to be gentle and good,
Out in the city begging for food."

Heavenly father, stretch out thy hand, And guide her to the Beautiful Land; Lead her along to that glorified shore, Where sin and poverty never come more.

A JERSEY PARSON TALKS.

Eureka! I have found a sure remedy for dyspepsia, blues and poor sermons!
In my excess of joy and benevolence, I shall decline taking out a patent for my discovery; and don't imagine I am a connection of that Long Island parson "whose sands of life" have been so long running out, and put me among "a few humbugs" in your next chapter of exposure. Let me inform you that I am a true-blue Jersey Parson, "Packing rich on forty pounds a year," and wish to save my poor "brethren of the cloth" from the needless ills to which they are heir, and the long doctor's bills and longer accounts for quack medicines; hence I publish my wonderful discovery; and, as I think you have some experience as to the efficacy of my remedy, perhaps I can get your "recommendation," though you are so charing in lending your influence to the quack medicine business.

Oh, oh! haven't I bored my congregations! and while I portrayed the sufferings of this life, stood as a living example of my text. I suffered from indigested food, and they from ill digested homilies. I began my profession with the prevalent notion that my labors were to be exclusively intellectual and spiritual, leaving to others the grosser affairs of this life, as though there was something of professional degradation and contamination in all manual labor. My body was regarded as a mere tenement, with an apartment for my allowance of brains, and a pumping room where the heart could stay and force vitality into stagnant nerves and muscles. Eating was a humiliating necessity, which required no particular attention as to quality, so that the quantity was not excessive.

I soon learned, especially in warm weather, that the brain would become sluggish in spite of my positive assertion that my sermons were not ready for Sunday; while my body was crying out in every aching bone and benumbed muscle for exercise. There was that bane of the minister's study, which some daughter of Eve, tempted of the Adversary, had put there, the soft, tempting lounge, on which an hour or two was spent oblivious of "division," "secondly," and "inference," and then the brain would consent to resume its task, though generally but feebly invigorated; but the yawning, stretching body said plainly as words could speak it, "exercise," "air," "exhalation"; yet yawning and stretching was all the satisfaction it usually got. By this long refusal to give the lungs and muscles proper stimulants, their ability to keep up a healthy tone to the system was destroyed, and dyspepsia with all its attendant horrors laid firm hold upon the delinquent. Ah, the painful remembered dozens of boxes of pills of all sizes, and tastes, and colors; the quarts of bitter decoctions, and pounds of nauseating powders which have gone down our disgusted throats, as a peace offering to the offended flesh!
Still, the grim monster kept his relentless hold. And then the horrors, "Gorgons and chimeras dire," deaths by fire and flood, earthquakes and lightnings, murders and blood; the idiocy and insanity! That imp of darkness, neighbor Walk's old black rooster! How often I anatomized his flaming red neck and head, emphatically snuggesting his belongings, a seal of his commission from the ether regions. What "Horror screamed from his discordant throat!" It cost many a dime paid to a little "ebony" to drive that hireling of Old Nick from our door, where he was sure to take an early position daily, and crow incessantly, with a long drawn screech that made every nerve in my body jump with anguish.
And then, the provoking biped, no sooner had I paid the price of his expulsion to the negro, who generally received with a broad display of ivory, as though he thought a fit subject for "sylum," than the exultant scream would resound from the other side of the house, as though bent on driving away that little wit, the hypochondria had left.

But why prolong this chapter of horrors! I am cured! I am well! I am sane! And I am most devoutly thankful! I am now a stranger to headaches, evil forebodings, bad dreams, nightmares, and evil-minded roosters.
When I go into my study I can exercise my mind vigorously, with no recurring drowsiness to interrupt my investigations and creep into my sermons beyond what is "to the manner." This happy change has not been brought about by patent reclining chairs, a resort to gymnastics, where a round price is asked for the privilege to exercise your muscles in some close room, often overcrowded by heated humanity; and most emphatically not by

"A doctor's saws and whittles, Of a' dimensions shaves and needles, A' kinds of boxes mugs an' bottles."

I have taken—what do you think?— one case of Jersey sand, done up with a spade, rake, hoe, wheelbarrow, pun-ing knife and taken in one or two doses of one or two hours each, morning and evening. And! Eureka! I have found it!

As my case is only one of hundreds found in the ranks of my profession, you may, perhaps, promote the main object of your journal and at the same time preach to preachers a practical sermon that may be to them and their hearers a lasting benefit, by giving these truthful notes from a Jersey Parson.—N. Y. Rural.

POLITENESS AT THE POLLS.

The following extract from a letter of a participant in the recent election in Wyoming territory is valuable, in so far as it completely disproves the often repeated assertion that the sights and scenes around the ballot-box on election day would deter modest women from venturing to the polls. And it also shows what has been reiterated time and again by the great advocates of the cause, i. e. that a woman's skirt is the besom appointed to sweep clean the vile path to the ballot box. Republicans and democrats alike can afford to take off their hats to a wash-erwoman when they know she holds a vote in her hand:

"I walked up to the polls, and voted as though I had been 'to the manner born.' You ought to have seen the hats lifted a id the crowd fall back and leave the way open for Mrs. A. and myself to get to the voting window.
The gentlemen were remarkably polite; the democrats thought we would vote their ticket, as Mrs. A. is a democrat, and the republicans thought we would vote their ticket, and I tore off the congressman's name from mine, as I did not care about commencing my 'political career' with voting for a sot. But contrary to the expectation of nearly all the party he was elected by a large majority.

I never before was so much pleased over the result of an election as I have been over this, for the democrats were confident of success. Carriages for the ladies ran all day. One came for me in the morning, but as I was not ready, the gentleman accompanying it said he would call again immediately after dinner. But I preferred walking, as I did not intend returning directly home. My husband and some others were dissatisfied because their man was not nominated, and declared they would not work to have such a man as Jones elected; but toward evening, when the democrats commenced getting desperate, these men might have been seen hurrying up a carriage for my washerwoman, and hunting up all the republican women they could hear of.

SOME FEATURES OF A JEWISH SABBATH.

BY JAMES PARTON.

Let us accompany a good orthodox Jewish family through their calm and cheerful Sabbath, and see how they keep and enjoy it. I select an orthodox family of a reformed, merely because the orthodox Jew is a historical person; as he keeps his Sabbath, his fathers have kept it for many centuries.
The Jewish Sabbath begins on Friday evening half an hour before sunset, and ends on Saturday evening half an hour after sunset, or when a star is visible in the sky. On Friday the day of preparation, the women and girls of the family are busy in providing for the morrow the best food of the week; for whatever is eaten or drank during the joyous sacred hours must be the very best the family can afford. Poor Jews will pinch all the week in order that their wives and children may have something good to eat on the sabbath. But that savory food must be cooked or prepared for cooking before the Sabbath begins; for our Israelitish brethren observe with just strictness the law which gives rest on the Sabbath day to their servants. They shun us in this particular. They will not use even their horses on the Sabbath. On a Sunday, about 12 m., you may see in front of Dr. Adams' fashionable Presbyterian church in Madison square, N. Y., or around Dr. Tyng's fashionable Episcopal church, in St George's square of the same city, from twenty to forty well appointed equipages waiting for the last hymn to be finished; but you will never see a vehicle before the superb Temple Immanuel, a Jewish synagogue in the Fifth avenue, although there are many families within who could ride home, if they would, in their own carriages. I do not say the Christians are wrong or the Jews right in this. It is no one's business but their own. But if we borrow the Hebrew word Sabbath, and adopt, verbally, their Sabbatical law, our practice perhaps ought to conform in some degree to our profession. It probably does not severely tax those coachmen and footmen to show off their gay turnouts and brilliant lives on a fine Sunday morning in the Fifth avenue. But for the heavy laden drudges of the boarding house kitchen, and the maid of all work in average families, I could wish we were all Jews from Saturday night till Monday morning. It is a dastardly shame to compel or permit women, who have faithfully toiled for us from Monday's tub to Saturday's scrub, to work hard all through the best hours of Sunday merely that we may gorge ourselves with dainty food. The Jews avoid this barbarous meanness. Their servants rest on their Sabbath.—From Atlantic Monthly for October.

A JAPANESE BAKERY.

A gentleman who has recently visited Japan thus amusingly describes a visit of himself and a companion to a Japanese bakery:

We stepped in to make a purchase of cake. The oven was a bed of burning charcoal, on which the baker had laid a thin sheet of iron when his leaves were ready, over which he placed a large hollow cover. The cakes looked nice, and tasted sweet but felt a kind of smart in the mouth which was disagreeable. Yacca, our Japanese servant, said that we were near our stopping place for the night, and it was useless to stop for eating.
The baker wished to know if we would wait and make (or something that sounded like that).

What was mahequi?
Yacca explained that to mahequi was to eat hot cakes, fresh roasted from the coals.

Yes, we would mahequi. Whereupon the baker took a handful of rice flour in his hands, dipped the whole (hands and all) into a pot of something that looked like stagnant soap grease, and then worked it through his fingers until he had a soft, sticky dough.

He then scraped all the dough that he could easily remove from his hands, and seizing the poker that lay on the floor, stirred up the coals, exchanging some of the dough from his hands for the black of the poker.

He then seized a bladder like bel-lowes, and blew away until he had a fine bed of coals. All the while his hands had been accumulating dirt, but regardless of that important point, he thrust his hands again into the dough, and worked all the black off, and some new dough on. His hair became disarranged, and he stuck it in place with a wad of dough, and then went on kneading again.

At last when he had slapped the young ones, sold cakes, greased his hands, and dropped several half made cakes on them, which in that case were always worked into a whole cake again, he was ready to put the cake on the coals.

Just then Lem thought that Hiwoka might be waiting for us, to which I readily assented, and we were about to leave.

"What! couldn't we stay to mahequi? It would be extra nice." Lem was sick and had the headache, no appetite, we would call again, etc.

"But we would pay for the mahequi, wouldn't we?"

"Well, yes, we would do that; we had put him to some trouble, and we would pay."
And we did pay. But neither then nor thereafter did either of us mahequi. The baker was pleased to get his tempos, and keep his dough, too, and if he sees the joke, will doubtless work in more black and more soap grease for the next European who may happen that way.

A farmer named Chilson, living near Gilesboro, being annoyed by a ground hog, managed to administer to the quadruped a dose of strychnine, which killed him nearly instantly. The carcass was suspended in a tree, where the crows soon espied the savory bit, and proceeded to appease their appetites.
After partaking of the fatal meat, the crows would fly rapidly a short distance, as if in agony, and fall dead to the ground. The bones being thoroughly stripped of their flesh, remained exposed to the bleaching influence of the sun, rain and frost for nearly two years, when falling to the ground, a highly prized dog masticated parts of them and died from the effects in a space of time not exceeding ten minutes.

At one of the stations on the Chicago railway, recently, an anxious inquirer came up to the door of the baggage car and said: "Is there anything for me?" After some search among boxes and trunks, the baggage-man rolled out a keg of whisky. "Anything more?" asked the wet grocer. "Yes," said the baggage-man; "there's a gravestone that goes with that liquor." The countenance of the wet grocer assumed a wistful appearance, and the car-door was shut with a slam.

THE NORMAN FACE.

The beauty of the Normans is a pr-verb all the world over. Nor is the universal admiration which has been bestowed upon it in the slightest degree exaggerated its lofty and exquisite character. The men in their way, are as handsome as the women. They have the fine oval face, sedate, bright eyes, and clear complexion of the old race. You look in vain for evidence of their Teutonic descent in these sculptured features, the skin and hair alone suggesting a reminiscence of their Saxon ancestry. The women are remarkable for the natural dignity of their carriage, which harmonizes strikingly with their tall and commanding figures, and the gravity and reserve of their expressions. Like the men, their faces are oval, with the slightly aquiline nose, large, flashing eyes, and curved lips. Their complexions are peculiarly transparent, the cheeks manding over with a blush rich in color, but delicate in its diffusion. A smile shows in their eyes, but the most inquisitive observer can not detect in their looks or manners the slightest indication of levity. A sweet seriousness is their predominant characteristic. It is strange enough to an Englishman to meet groups of these people, men and women, reproducing before his eyes that famous Norman head with which all are so familiar. It carries you back at once to the eleventh century.
Wherever he turns he sees in a magic glass, William the conqueror, moving up the streets and highways.

A FIXED FACT.

The less you leave your children in your will the more they will have in twenty years afterwards. Wealth inherited should be an incentive to action, instead of that, it is an incentive to sloth. The only money that does a man good, is that which he earns himself. A ready-made fortune, like ready made breeches, seldom fits the man who comes in possession. A gentleman died in the city a month since, who left his son money, other personal property and a collection of rare paintings. The week after he came into possession the pictures were traded off at one third of their value to a gentleman who deals in claret and hock. The father was a connoisseur of fine arts, while his son was a connoisseur only in brandy and three minute horses. In all probability, a year hence will find the property of the latter personage reduced to two shirts and a necktie, with his soul lost in spending what his father lost his soul to save. As we said before, the only money that does us good is the money we earn.—Lynn Mercury.

The protection of property is one of the objects sought to be attained by the prohibition party. Many may not realize the immense waste which the liquor traffic produces in property.
The destruction of property occasioned by the use of intoxicating liquors, in this nation, nearly equals the value of the liquor—perhaps much more than this; but just how much it can never be known by finite calculation.
It is safe to assume that from one fourth to one half of all the local tax, under the burdens of which the people groan and have constant unrest, is occasioned directly or indirectly by the use of intoxicating liquors. If any one doubts this let him examine tax rolls, and learn how much of all the local tax is raised to pay constables, sheriffs, and courts and juries, and the cost of criminal prosecutions; and then let him visit our jails and prisons, and there he can learn that nine tenths of all criminals learned their lessons of infamy through the means of the intoxicating cup. They associated with grog vendors and drinkers, drank themselves, or inherited the results of intemperance from others.

The rights of woman rest upon precisely the same foundation as the rights of man. The logic of democracy and the logic of events join hands, and it seems to me that our chief work is to press upon the minds of all thinking men and women, constantly and persistently, the inevitable alternative of renouncing the very principles of free government, altogether, or else the acceptance of that principle in the whole length and breadth of its application to all citizens regardless of race, color, or sex. It was a logic similar to this which gave the Abolitionists their power, and finally crowned their labors with triumph in spite of all the arguments which could be mustered, founded upon the predicted mischief of giving freedom to the bondman.— G. W. Julian.

A southern census-taker says: "As for the ages of the negroes, that is almost entirely a matter of conjecture.
So far as my experience goes, nineteen out of twenty cannot tell within ten years how old they are, nor are their parents more accurate even with regard to their very young children.
John was born in cotton-pickin time, de year before freedom struck de earth; 'Jenny was two months old when Massa Charley got wounded in de war; 'Sal was born 'bout de time massa built him new gin house; 'Jim was born in de Christmas week of de year when frost killed de taters.' Such are the data from which to collect the ages of children, while the years of older persons are a matter of more uncertain conjecture."

"Billy Ross, a temperance lecturer at Rushville, Illinois, was preaching to the young on his favorite theme. He said:

"Now, boys, when I ask you a question you mustn't be afraid to answer me. When you look around and see all these fine houses, farms and cattle, do you ever think who owns them?
Your fathers own them do they not?"

"Yes, sir!" shouted a hundred voices.

"Well, where will your fathers be a hundred years from now?"

"Dead?" shouted the boys.

"That's right, and who will own this property?"

"Us boys."

"Right. Now tell me—did you ever when on the streets notice the drunkards lounging about the saloon door, and waiting for somebody to treat them?"

"Yes, sir, lots of 'em."

"Well, where will they be in twenty years from now?"

"Dead?" said the boys.

"And who will be the drunkards then?"

"Us boys!"

Billy was thunderstruck for a moment, but recovering himself tried to tell the boys how to escape such a fate.

Professor Geild has found that the velocity of the electric waves through the Atlantic cables is from 7000 to 8000 miles per second, and depends somewhat upon whether the circuit is formed by the two cables or by one cable and the earth. Telegraph wires upon poles in the air conduct the electric waves with a velocity a little more than double this, and it is remarked, as a curious fact, that the rapidity of the transmission increases with the distance between the wire and the earth, or the height of the support.
Wires buried in the earth likewise transmit slowly, like submarine cables.
Wires placed upon poles, but slightly elevated, transmit signals with a velocity of 12,000 miles per second, while those at a considerable height give a velocity of 16,000 or 20,000.

The following advertisement appeared in several public places in Carter county, Tennessee, and for originality of composition goes ahead of wax figures and Artemus Ward one time:

Lost My Dog! I have Lost My Dog!
I got in contact with a Bare on the Third Sunday in July and he followed the Bare off, and he is very Easy to take up at any body's House. He is a Black Spot run down his Back. He

Spots on his Back, and Yellow round

Two Dollars a year, in advance.
Massillon, Wednesday, Oct. 12.

According to announcement on last Thursday evening the republicans of Massillon met at Madison Hall and were ally addressed by Hon. J. A. Ambler on the political topics of the day. Mr. A. is well posted on the subjects he discussed, and showed up the inconsistencies and short comings of the democracy and the leading questions now under discussion. He clearly showed that it was the opposition that began the practice of land subsidies to railroads some twenty years ago, Stephen A. Douglas leading off in the enterprise. And they have encouraged the practice by their votes in congress almost ever since, even to the last efforts in that way. Unfortunately, the republicans, in one or two cases imitated this unworthy example, but now have ceased to offend in that way. Mr. A. was charged last winter with having voted for the last land subsidy, but he showed from the record that the allegation was incorrect. And as to financial matters he showed up the democracy in glowing colors. All along they have been trying to make out the administration a failure on this important point, while the truth is since the commencement of the present administration the public debt has been decreasing rapidly every hour and every minute.

Ex-senator Martin followed in a few brief remarks, exhorting voters to come out at the election, as important issues are pending in our state politics. The meeting had a good effect.

The Cleveland fair last week was an immense success, if the large attendance of people and the grand exhibition of all sorts of productions are any evidence in that way. On Thursday it is estimated that some 75,000 people were on the grounds. A large number of our citizens were present and we are informed that Massillon added materially to the manufacturing portion of the exhibition. The weather, most of the time, was favorable, and the railroads were overloaded with passengers to and from the fair. The grounds are about five miles from the city, finely situated, but not improved in consequence of the want of time. It is expected to be a permanent institution of the place, and reflects much credit on the enterprise of the people there. General good order prevailed the first days of the fair. Fruit was largely exhibited, and a great number of fine specimens were presented. Flowers of the season were also in profusion. Cheddar was represented in a thousand ways, but the big cheese from Windham, Trumbull county, weighing over 1100 pounds, was the center of admiration to many. Grapes were there by the ton, and sold cheap. The Lender had a full rigged office on the ground, and published a morning and evening paper, which was sold by thousands, as they wanted to see the latest— for they had a telegraph office there which kept them posted. There was too much to be seen last week so they arranged to use Monday and Tuesday of this week to give the horsemen a chance to show their stock.

In the vast crowds at the Cleveland fair we have heard of but one accident of a serious nature and that was a most tragic affair. A man accidentally fell off a train while in motion, and had his head instantly severed from his body. His wife was along and of course was terribly excited at the accident. Eating could be had at almost any place, but when sleeping time arrived it was impossible for thousands to find a bed; or even a shelter, so vast numbers put in sleepless nights.

The monthly report of the department of Agriculture for August and September, published at Washington, embodies a large amount of information in regard to the condition of the crops the present season. Taking 10 as the average standard Ohio stands as follows: Corn, 11; spring wheat, 9.7; spring rye, 9.7; oats, 9.7; barley, 9.5; buckwheat, 10; potatoes, 9.7; tobacco, 9.7; hay, 8.8. The grape crop is represented as abundant almost over the entire country. A few of the states have increased in the wool product, but a majority are not up to the usual standard, so that taking all together there is a falling off. Hogs maintain their position in weight and influence. Sorghum has almost gone out east of Pennsylvania, while in the western states it is represented in fair condition. Cotton has somewhat increased. In Ohio apples at 6; peaches, 5.8; grapes, 10.5. In Maryland grasshoppers have been very destructive, destroying not only grass, but devouring the leaves of large trees. A large increase of cheese factories has taken place within the last year. In California parties are taking considerable interest in the manufacture of beet sugar, and have been favored with reasonable success. A project is also in progress, in the same state to construct a canal 100 miles in length for irrigating a portion of now almost useless land so that it will afford sufficient production for a million people. Texas is improving in agricultural productions, and fruits, since the war. English sparrows have been introduced into New York, and are commended for diminishing mosquitoes. The potato bug is very destructive in some of the western states.

It is perhaps premature to publish the population of towns, cities and other localities, as the marshals of the different districts have not had time to fully correct what errors may have crept into the work of their deputies; yet we notice that the papers are making public these results, and in some of their long lists we find the following table:

Cities	Pop 1870.	Pop 1880.
Cleveland	93,018	143,417
Columbus	31,093	48,788
Cincinnati	31,336	18,354
Dayton	20,856	30,051
Youngstown	10,496	2,750
Akron	10,010	3,477
Canton	8,661	4,141
Steubenville	8,107	6,134
Mansfield	8,094	4,381
Windsor	7,734	3,392
Newburgh	6,240	2,810
Massillon	5,178	4,219

By these figures we see that Massillon has increased 1,339 during the last ten years. Akron and Youngstown indicate the largest increase of any other places, although several towns have done nearly as well.

Robinson, the man who was charged with the murder of Mrs. Lunsford, at Mansfield, May last, after an elaborate trial, which continued several days, and elicited more than usual interest, was acquitted on last Saturday. Not long ago a young boy, of the same place, killed his brother by striking him on the head and breaking the skull. He was also tried and acquitted. There is coming to be a general disposition by juries to lean toward the side of mercy, even in decided cases of murder. This indicates that the days of capital punishment are coming to an end. It is evidence of the progressing spirit of humanity. Not that murderers should go unwhipped of punishment, but let them be imprisoned for life. This is more terrible than death to many a transgressor.

A savage murder was committed at Cleveland on last Friday night or Saturday morning. A Dr. Gallagher's wife charged that a Mr. Jones had been annoying her, trying to take improper liberties, during her husband's absence. When G. returned home his wife told him of the circumstances, when he immediately sought Jones and shot him through the breast with a pistol, resulting in death in a few minutes afterward.

Messrs. Atwater are purchasing and sending off considerable quantities of apples this season, as there seems to be a market for them elsewhere.

Apple butter must be a big thing in this part of the country, as a great many people are making it in considerable quantities. Every day somebody comes here to get papers to cover their apple butter crocks.

As the season for printing sale bills is at hand, we will just say to the public that we are prepared to do anything in that line, at short notice, and on fair terms. So bring on the work.

Birds Eye View of Massillon.—We had the pleasure this morning of examining a copy of the Birds Eye View of this city, just completed, and we are glad to say that we find it artistic in style, faithful in detail, and executed in the highest style of the art and are pleased to note that it so much exceeds the sample of the work shown while soliciting subscriptions, that it cannot fail to give entire satisfaction to all subscribers. All that is necessary is to get our positions, by imagining ourselves up in the air, southwest of the city looking north-east, and we have a better and more complete description of the city than it would be possible to convey in any other manner. It will make an interesting ornament for the parlor or office, and its local interest will increase as changes take place in the city, and it will be a very interesting relic for future reference.

Mr. W. R. Patchen is now in town to deliver the work to subscribers. At the low price it is furnished every family should have a copy, although we are informed by the agent that he is not here to make new sales, only to deliver to subscribers, and that he has but a few extra copies more than what was subscribed for, and he will furnish them to subscribers only, and should they wish to send some of these extra copies to their friends abroad, he will favor them in regard to prices. It would be the best advertisement to call our thriving city into notice. They can be sent without injury for six cents postage in the United States, and eighteen cents to Europe, and the agent will sell them in the shape for mailing if desired.

WELL'S

CARBOLIC TABLETS.

An unfailing remedy for all bronchial difficulties, coughs, colds, hoarseness, asthma, dyspepsia, dryness of the throat or wind pipe and all catarrhal diseases.

The wonderful modern discovery of carbolic acid, is destined to become one of the greatest blessings to mankind in its application to diseases of the human race, and is a great curative principle in all affections of the throat, chest, lungs and stomach.

Dr. Well's Carbolic Tablets.

Besides the great remedial agent carbolic acid, contain other ingredients, universally recommended, which chemically combine, producing a tablet, a highly medicinal and better adapted for the uses of the human race, than any preparation ever before offered to the public.

The little mongoose when bitten by R.

endly serpent resorts to a certain plant, eats of it, and escapes the effect of the poison. That is instinct. Human beings on the other hand, must depend on reason and experience in selecting the means of protecting health and life against unwholesome influences. Now, what does reason say on this vital subject? Does it not tell us that to ingurgitate and purify the system is the best any to protect it against the invisible poison which generates disease? Surely it does. The next question is, why guide shall we follow in choosing a medicinal safeguard against the poison? The answer is, the experience of the physician. Well, the experience of eighteen years comprised in one unbroken series of satisfactory testimonials assures us that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters possesses strengthening qualities in choosing a medicinal safeguard against the poison. The experience of the physician is not combined in the same manner as in any other medicine extant, with the antidote to which reason bids us resort when our health is impaired. The malaria which produces epidemic disorders is of another cause, altogether inherent and constitutional, and connected with our habits, occupations and purities.

The venom of a dangerous reptile is scarce more subtle and noxious than that which is the cause of the epidemic disorders. The fevers, bilious disorders, disturbances of the bowels, and other serious maladies produced by these insubstantial elements is absolutely necessary that the stomach the life of the organs should be, so to speak, in a robust condition. Upon the removal of resistance from the vital organs, in opposition to the deleterious influences that assail it, the safety of the health depends, and it is because the great invigorant imparts energy and regularity to the most important functions of the body, that it can be recommended and guaranteed as an invaluable preventive medicine.

morbid matter from the blood, cleanse the entire system, and produce the most vigorous action of the different organs of the human body. It is the great blood purifier and a reliable remedy for typhoid fever, dysentery, cholera, and all the diseases of the stomach, resulting from a deranged stomach, and also that harassing disease, sick headache, biliousness,

The fact that in all parts of the land the medical faculty prescribe Fisher's Herb Balm for their patients who are afflicted with rheumatic disease, should convince the most skeptical that this proprietary compound is a medicine upon which they can rely as absolutely reliable in curing all the above mentioned ailments.

RULES FOR LIE.

The following rules, from the papers of Dr. West, were, according to his memorandum, thrown together as general way marks in the journey of life.

Never ridicule sacred things, or what others may esteem such, however absurd they may appear to be.

Never to show levity when the people are professedly engaged in worship.

Never to resent a supposed injury, until I know the views and motives of it. Nor on any account to retaliate.

Never judge a person's character by personal appearance.

Always take the part of an absent person who is censured in company, so far as truth and propriety will allow.

Never to think the worse of another on account of his differing from me in religious or political opinions.

A profuse and many times excessively offensive discharge from the nose, with stopping up of that organ at times, impairment of the sense of smell and taste, watering or weak eyes impaired hearing, irregular appetite, occasional nausea, pressure and pain over the eyes, and at times in the back of the head, occasional chilly sensations, cold feet, and a feeling of lassitude and debility are symptoms, which are common to catarrh, yet all of them are not present in every case. Dr. Sage's catarrh remedy cures catarrh in its worst form and stages. It is pleasant to use and contains no poisonous or caustic drugs. Sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents. Address R. V. Pierce, M. D. Buffalo, N. Y. A pamphlet sent free. Sold by druggists.

McDONALD & BRUCE

The Independent,

Massillon, Ohio.

Is now Seven Years Old, and

"Still Lives."

Without boasting of being an organ of immense influence, we may with diffidence claim that the paper is not without usefulness in the right direction, ever contending for justice in all the living issues of the day. But its principal business has ever been to subserve the local interests of the community with which it is identified, and so it proposes to continue. Its home record of the ever varying phases of business, of the prosperity of the city, and of the social and moral state of society here, with other matters too numerous to specify, will give those who come after us, and have occasion to examine the files of this paper, a faithful history of the years of its existence.

We solicit the continued patronage of our people in the confidence that we shall render satisfaction—at least as near as we can come at it—and for such as are removing elsewhere we hope to make the Independent a very welcome visitor.

Dr. J. LONG,

Eclectic Physician,

Has located himself at Massillon, O., for the treatment of Female & Chronic Diseases.

Office on Main street, four doors east of the American Hotel.

All consultations and examinations of patients made free of charge.

Dr. Long examines and explains your disease without asking any questions. If he understands your case you know it, and cannot be deceived. If he cannot tell your disease, and how you feel without asking questions he does not consider himself competent to treat your case. This is the criterion to go by, and patients should not be satisfied with any other. This is the only direct and positive evidence of my ability as a scientific physician, and by this standard I am willing to be judged.

A proper diagnosis of local disease, without constitutional symptoms, that is, not affecting the system generally, must depend upon the judgement of both patient and physician.

Give Dr. Long a call, and satisfy yourself whether he understands your case sufficiently well to treat them successfully.

Dr. Long may be consulted in the German and English languages. Address letters, JAMES LONG, M. D., Massillon, Ohio.

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the natural cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhea, or Seminal weakness, involuntary seminal losses, impotency, mental and physical incapacity, impediments to marriage, etc.; also, consumption, epilepsy, and fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance.

Priced in a sealed envelope only 6 cents.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, postpaid on receipt of six cents or two post stamps.

Also, Dr. Culverwell's "Marriage Guide," priced 25 cents.

MRS. ALLEN'S

Hair Restorer & Zylbalsamum

Are so uniformly grateful and beneficial, that they are with justice called the natural strengtheners of the human hair. They are two entirely separate and distinct preparations, not to be used together at one time.

Mrs. Allen's Hair Restorer

Never fails to satisfy the most refined and cultivated. A guarantee goes with every bottle, that it will quickly restore gray or white hair to its original youthful beauty, gloss and color; after its use a few times the hair will grow thicker and stronger. It will stop its falling and induce a healthy and luxuriant growth. It is an exquisite hair dressing, agreeable, harmless and healthy. Entirely different from most other preparations for the hair, its composition and ingredients are nourishing, giving life and vigor to the roots.

Mrs. Allen's Zylbalsamum

This exquisite preparation is free from any sediment, and is a toilet treasure. The urgent want of a simple Hair Dressing for the youth of both sexes, first induced the manufacture of the Zylbalsamum, and the sale of it is perfectly immense, not only in this country, but in Europe.
